

With the amplification and visibility of the will and voices of the people of the world by the Internet, there is a need for moderation and organization...

But let us remember, that things can be technically right as to fact but everlasting wrong in the truth... the first step is to learn to love each other...

Simplified potential paths to moderate misinformation and disinformation

